100° Morte di Sir R.Hill

Sir Rowland Hill 1795–1879

Born in Kidderminster, England, Rowland Hill began his career as a school-teacher. Later he became interested in postal reform and, in 1837, published a pamphlet on this subject. His proposals were accepted, and uniform penny postage and adhesive stamps were introduced in 1840 – the Penny Black and Twopence Blue were issued on the 6th May of that year.

Political intrigue caused his dismissal from the Treasury in 1842, but he received a public testimonial of £13,000 in 1846, and he returned to office as Secretary of the Post Office in 1854. He was knighted in 1860, and he was buried in Westminster Abbey.
